USER EXAMPLE

November 28, 1975 at 08:30 (GMT -8 hours), 122w25, 37n46

The most powerful astrological aspect - for better or for worse! A conjunction describes a very important character trait.

A major aspect. Can show incompatibility between two facets of a person's character. Can also show breadth of vision in that area of life.

Two planets at right angles to one another can show character traits that are at odds with one another. Can also be a spur for action, growth and change.

Two planets a third of the 360 circle apart show an easy, flowing relationship between two aspects of a person's character.

Two planets one sixth of the 360 circle apart is similar to a Trine - easy and harmonious - but not as powerful.

Two planets five twelfths of the 360 circle apart show character traits that are contradictory and not at ease with one another.

Introduction

Your Natal Birth Chart - Personality Profile - is a snap shot of the stars and planets in the heavens at the time, and place, that you were born. The positions of the planets, the relationships they form with one another, and the zodiac signs they fall in, together with the rising sign and the celestial houses, form a unique pattern which reveals the different aspects of your personality and true potential.

Your Rising Sign

On your chart, at the 9 o'clock position, you will see your Rising Sign, also known as your Ascendant. This shows the exact degree of the zodiac sign that was rising over the Eastern horizon at the time and place that you were born. Its sign reveals the lens through which you see the world and how you seem to others.

The Twelve Celestial Houses

Your Rising Sign is so important as it also marks the start of your First House, from which all the other houses follow. Each house rules a different area of your life, which will be affected in a very different way by whichever zodiac sign, or signs, it happens to contain, and by any planet in it.

The Sun, Moon and Planets

Each planet represents a different aspect of our being. The Sun represents our true self, and the Moon, our instincts and emotions. Mercury, the Mind, Venus, love and pleasure, Mars, action and desire, Jupiter, optimism and good fortune, Saturn, boundaries and limitations, Uranus, freedom, Neptune, dreams and ideals, and Pluto, rebirth, intensity and far-reaching change.

Each planet behaves differently in each zodiac sign, and in each of the twelve houses that describe the different areas of our lives.

How the Planets Interact

The relationships between the planets is also of great importance. The more dynamic links, or 'aspects', a planet makes to other planets, or to the 'angles' of your chart, such as your Ascendant or Midheaven, the high point of your chart, the more powerful a role it plays in your psychology.

A conjunction, when two or more planets are very close together, is the most powerful link. Next, in order of importance, come oppositions, squares, when two planets are at right angles to one another, trines, sextiles and quincunxes.

The sign and house occupied by your ruling planet, the ruler of your Rising Sign, and any links that it may have to other planets, also play a major role.

Together, all these different factors make up the unique and complex person that is you, revealing how you love, the way you think, your strengths and weaknesses, where your real talents lie, and where your life is heading.

Your Life's Direction

The North and South Nodes of the Moon, the signs they occupy and the houses that they fall in, show what is second nature to you, and which qualities you are striving to develop in this life.

And, as time goes by and the planets continue on their journey round the heavens, they form new, dynamic links with the planets in your birth chart, bringing different aspects of your personality and feelings into sharper focus as the story of your life unfolds.

Your Natal Report

The Sun

Just as the sun in the sky is the center of the solar system, the Sun in astrology is the central nucleus of your personality. If each of the planets circling round the sun represents a single facet of your personality - Venus describes how you love and Saturn how you relate to responsibility, for example - then the Sun is the conductor of your personal orchestra, giving meaning and coherence to the wholeness that is you. It is the part of yourself that you identify with, your sense of self. Its sign - your sun-sign - and house position, as well as the aspects that it makes to other planets, describe your true potential; the 'you' you are deep down and are striving to express, as well as your will, your goals and purpose. While the feminine Moon represents your Soul, the masculine Sun represents your Spirit. Its position in your chart also shows the ways in which your outlook has been influenced by your father.

Your Sun in Sagittarius

With the Sun in fiery Sagittarius, the most adventurous of all the signs, you see life as a great journey and a quest to find the truth. Like the starry archer, who aims its arrows at the heavens, you are not content with dull routine and nothing less than finding out life's meaning really satisfies you. You paint on a broad canvas and you soon grow restless if you are pinned down or penned in for too long. To learn, and then to teach, are your two goals, and sharing your ideas with others, and trying to build a better world, are of great importance to you. Politics, philosophy, religion and long-distance travel are Sagittarius' domain.

Your Sun in the Twelfth House

The twelfth house governs the unconscious mind, and is the place where we seek oneness with all life. Telepathy and psychic powers, intuition and tuning into hidden needs and feelings, both in ourselves and others, are found here. It is also the house of self sacrifice and of secrets of all kinds, and the place where we are linked to the beyond.

In the twelfth house, there is a powerful urge to melt back into the oneness of existence and to lose all separate sense of self. As the Sun represents your sense of self and true identity, your quest is to discover that you belong to something larger - and far more important - than yourself. This position for the Sun suggests that you are an 'old soul', whose spiritual journey is now far advanced. You are in tune with what is hidden and are aware of all the unseen undercurrents in the atmosphere around you. So much so, that at times you feel the need to withdraw and redefine your personal boundaries.

With the Sun here, you are a natural medium and may well have untapped psychic powers. You would do well in a career that involves helping others, as this position gives great understanding and compassion.

Your Sun in Conjunction with Your Mercury

You have a clear and rational approach to life and very well-developed mental faculties. Nor are you every at a loss for words, either in professional situations or in your social life. You are also very creative and full of good ideas and, with all your energy, you should also be able to put them into action. However, your astounding intellectual abilities could also drain your energy, because you are so curious and determined not to miss out on anything.

Your Sun in Conjunction with Your Neptune

You have such a well-developed intuition that you sense hidden realities other people do not dream of, and are aware of even the most subtle undercurrents in the atmosphere around you. The intangible is more important to you than the down to earth realities of every day, which means you can get lost in dreams, as sometimes it is hard for you to tell the difference between fact and fiction, or to keep your feet on solid ground. But you are also deeply sensitive to others' feelings and have great compassion for anyone who suffers.

Your Sun in Sextile with Your Moon

The Sun stands for what we want and where we are going, the Moon, for our needs, our instinctive emotions and our past. The Sun also represents the father and the Moon, the mother.

With your Sun sextile your Moon, your parents most likely got along well with one another, or at least appeared to do so, and you had a stable, peaceful childhood. As a result, you are at ease with life and with yourself, and have no problem in expressing your real feelings. Whatever else is in your horoscope, this position gives a sunny optimistic disposition, stability and security, as your will power and emotions are in harmony with one another. You relate easily to other people, and have no problem in maintaining close partnerships, but, because life is easy for you, you tend to take the line of least resistance when life is going well, which means you can be lazy. But you also have more than your fair share of energy and drive and can recover from life's setbacks quickly.

Your Sun in Trine with Your Saturn

You are self-disciplined and have great organizational skills. You are also honest and reliable, as well as loyal to those you care for. When you take on responsibilities, you do not let others down, or give up on projects prematurely. Above all, you have a lot of common sense, about both money and emotional issues, which ensures that you make the right decisions and helps you reach your most ambitious goals.

Your Sun in Sextile with Your Pluto

No matter what you do, you throw yourself into it with real passion and you are always ready to make changes. With your power, determination and stamina, you can achieve great things, both for yourself and others. For the most part, you are at ease with life, and with yourself, and you are not afraid of showing your feelings. Your gift for helping others deal with their emotions, and for seeing beneath the surface of existence, also makes you an ideal friend, counselor, or researcher.

Your Sun in Sextile with Your MC

You know how to put yourself across and get the feedback and support you need from others. You also have a natural talent for balancing your career and private, family life. In childhood, your relationship to both your parents was probably good, which makes it easy for you to fit in with those you work with.

Your Ascendant in Sagittarius

With the adventurous sign of Sagittarius rising over the horizon at the time that you were born, you see life in the round and you paint on a broad canvas. Like the starry archer that aims his arrow at the heavens, you are on a quest to find life's meaning, and to see the world, which means that you soon grow restless if you are pinned down for too long. To learn, and then to teach, are your main goals in life, and finding ways to build a better world and help mankind on its great journey, are what motivate you. You are a natural idealist, and, with your well-developed social sense, you tend to play a leading role in any group that you belong to.

With Sagittarius rising, you are ruled by the expansive, optimistic planet, Jupiter. Its zodiac sign and house position, as well as the links it makes to other planets, are key aspects of your natal chart.

The Moon

The Moon represents the intuitive, instinctive side of your personality. The way that you relate to others, your instinctive emotions and habitual responses, as well as your relationship to your mother and your family, are all ruled by the feminine, passive and sensitive Moon. The values, general orientation, and 'atmosphere' of the sign it occupies in your chart, as well as any links between the Moon and other planets, reveal a lot about your childhood home and upbringing, your roots and your past. It is connected with nurturing and safety.

Your Moon in Libra

Libra is the most sociable and amenable of all the signs, ever eager to fit in with others and seeking harmony and balance. Governed by Venus, this is the sign of one-to-one relationships, and, like one half of a pair of scales, Libra needs others to feel whole. Falling in love with love - and being flirtatious - can be problems, as can making choices and decisions, but Libra is also the sign of justice, and is fair, civilized - and sophisticated.

With the Moon in Libra, you have grace and charm, as well as a keen eye for beauty and good taste. You may well have been brought up in a very cultured atmosphere, where harmony and good manners came first. Emotionally, your greatest desire is to live in harmony with others, and you usually get along well with everyone. Libra is the sign of partnership and, at times, you can lack independence, as like one half of the pair of scales which is Libra's symbol, you need other people to feel whole. You hate conflict and will do almost anything to keep the peace. Which means that you will always compromise, even when it is against your personal interests. But you are extremely popular because you are so kind and helpful, and are always willing to put yourself out for friends and loved ones.

Your Moon in the Ninth House

The ninth house is concerned with discovery and broadening our horizons. It rules both physical journeys and personal ones which may involve religion and philosophy, for many of our journeys are inward ones, being quests to find the meaning of existence. The sign occupying this house, and the planets found there, describe our quest and our vision of the universe's meaning. Here we can stand back, and, seeing life in the round, can synthesize experience and make sense of our lives.

With your Moon in the ninth house of long distance travel, religion and philosophy, you seek the meaning of existence through your intuition and your feelings. With the Moon here, you may have traveled much when young and so feel at home wherever life may lead you. Certainly, you have a natural gift for establishing real contact with those from other cultures and could well settle in a foreign land. You are nothing if not open-minded, especially where all religious differences are concerned, as you sense the underlying unity behind the different faiths. You can be all things to all men and are also able to guide others on their spiritual path, as you tune in instinctively to the spirit of the age, even if you find it hard to intellectualize about such matters.

Your Moon in Conjunction with Your Pluto

The instinctive Moon conjunct the intense and secretive planet, Pluto, adds great depth and passion to your emotional nature.

You do not show your feelings lightly; still waters run deep with you and anyone who invades your privacy will be rebuffed. But because you understand your own needs and emotions, it is easy for you, if you choose, to manipulate the world around you. However, on the plus side, you can have great generosity and sympathy for others' pain, because deep down you feel so strongly. You also have great strength, and, despite the intensity of your emotions, you are able, when needs be, to cut loose from situations that you have outgrown and turn the page. For Pluto is the planet that rules endings and beginnings - birth, death, sex - and transformation - and if you feel that you are being stifled, you will break free and start afresh.

Your Moon in Conjunction with Your MC

With the Moon in conjunction with your midheaven, you have a natural, instinctive way of putting yourself over. As a result, you may well reach a public position that will bring you into contact with a lot of people, as you know how to handle a crowd. It is also possible that you are drawn to acting, for which you have a natural flair, as you usually leave a positive impression on others.

Your Moon in Sextile with Your Mercury

You are very sensitive to other people, as well as being compassionate, tactful and discreet. Because you pick up easily on the atmosphere around you and on others' feelings, you find it easy to enlist their backing and support. You also have a real sixth sense for coming trends. Your approach to life is not an intellectual one; you rely, instead, on your instincts and your intuition, which will rarely let you down. Your sphere of interest is the personal world of one to one relationships and you are not drawn to abstract thought. You are interested in the past and also value your own memories, which are vivid. Your family plays an important role in your existence.

Your Moon in Opposition with Your Jupiter

You are generous to a fault, and would rather take a risk than be seen as mean or penny-pinching. You are also very optimistic where all material and financial issues are concerned, which means that you could find that money comes and goes at an alarming speed, as you are a natural gambler. You love the good things of life and will often throw yourself into the pursuit of pleasure as if there were no tomorrow, trusting to fate to pick up the tab.

Your Moon in Sextile with Your Saturn

This aspect gives you great composure and considerable practical skills in both private and professional situations. You have great organizational talents, and you have a natural flair for managing finances. You are a very rational person, and you prefer to stick with what you know than to take unnecessary risks, with either money or emotions. You are also open, honest and sincere.

Your Moon in Sextile with Your Neptune

This aspect gives psychic abilities, and your intuition will help you to improve your financial situation. You are also very imaginative and can express your most subtle perceptions with ease. Your sensitivity and your empathy with others make you very popular with those you meet. You also feel close to your family and have the ability to sense emotions over a long distance.

Mercury

Mercury, the planet called after the quick-witted Messenger of the Gods, rules communication of all kinds. The sign and house it occupies, as well as the links it makes to other planets, show not only how you communicate, but what kind of mind you have - how you think and reason - and how, and what, you learn. Its position also shows your relationships to your brothers and sisters - or your lack of them. Above all, it is concerned with making connections. It also rules all forms of trade and commerce.

Your Mercury in Sagittarius

For Sagittarius, the starry archer, life is an adventure and a journey to discover truth. Sagittarius is about the way we broaden our horizons and our thirst for knowledge and experience. It is concerned with learning, and with teaching, as well as our entire philosophy of life. Sagittarius sees the broader picture and is not concerned with details. It also governs foreign lands and cultures, as well as everything connected with religion and freedom of belief.

You paint on a broad canvas and you are not interested in details, but in finding out the meaning of existence. You prefer big ideas - and grandiose schemes, even if they do involve a risk - to dull routine. You are a free-thinking, liberal person and you are prepared to fight for freedom, and for other people's rights; but you can also be dogmatic if those you wish to help should disagree with how you see things. You could well be drawn to politics or education, as the urge to teach is strong. As is the urge to learn, for you see life as a journey and you will probably travel a great deal.

Your Mercury in the Twelfth House

The twelfth house governs the unconscious mind, and is the place where we seek oneness with all life. Telepathy and psychic powers, intuition and tuning into hidden needs and feelings, both in ourselves and others, are found here. It is also the house of self sacrifice and of secrets of all kinds, and the place where we are linked to the beyond.

This is an introverted position for the volatile, quick-witted planet, Mercury. What concerns you in this life is not the outer world, but what is going on inside your soul. Exploring and analyzing your own motives and emotions, and placing them in a new context that you can understand more fully, is your aim. You are also very open to the atmosphere around you, and can find it hard, at times, to distinguish clearly where your ideas end and those of others start. You are also gifted with a powerful imagination - and with the ability to put your subtlest intuitions into words. Mercury here also sharpens psychic powers.

Your Mercury in Conjunction with your Neptune

With Mercury conjunct Neptune, you are one of nature's dreamers and you almost certainly have psychic powers. In fact, your intuition is so powerful that you often pick up on what others think before they have had time to speak. You also have a gift for poetry, and may well be drawn to studying esoteric subjects, which have great fascination for you.

Your Mercury in Trine with Your Saturn

Intellectually, you are disciplined and intelligent and can express your views clearly. You also have great organisational powers and the ability to delegate to other people. You have a lot of common sense, which means that the decisions you make are usually the right ones, as you are cool-headed and able to stand back and see your situation in the round.

Your Mercury in Sextile with Your Pluto

Your precise, logical mind enables you to understand other people's motives and see through to the heart of any matter. The truth is the most important thing to you, which makes you the ideal detective, as you rarely give up until you are quite sure that you have all the facts. You also have the willpower, and imagination, to reach your most ambitious goals, as well as to enlist support from those who count.

Venus

Venus shows how you relate to, and cooperate, with others and the way you love. While the Moon is the symbol of the mother, and of all maternal love and caring, the love goddess, Venus, is a beautiful young woman. Venus's sign and house position, as well as the links it makes to other planets, show how you attract others to you and your attitude towards romance. It softens any planet that it touches. In a woman's chart, its sign reveals your type of femininity and sexuality, while in a man's chart it indicates what kind of woman you are drawn to. It also shows what you find beautiful, harmonious and desirable and what gives you pleasure. Venus also rules the arts and music.

Your Venus in Libra

Libra is the most sociable and amenable of all the signs, ever eager to fit in with others and seeking harmony and balance. Governed by Venus, this is the sign of one-to-one relationships and partnerships of every kind. Making choices and decisions can be tricky, and much time can be spent weighing up the pros and cons. But Libra is also the sign of justice, and is fair, civilized - and sophisticated.

Charm, grace, good looks and enough subtlety and tact to run the diplomatic service, make you, in many ways, the ideal friend and lover. Always elegant and civilized, you also know how to put anyone, and everyone, at ease, as you have a natural ability for understanding others' feelings and will go to great lengths to please them. This is the sign of partnership and close relationships are easily the most important thing in your existence. Like one half of the pair of scales which is Libra's symbol, you need other people to feel whole and balanced.

Candlelight and flowers, wine and conversation, are almost essential to you, and you can pass many happy hours, with both friends and loved ones, analyzing all the finer shades of love. But because it is so easy for you to be charming, and because you enjoy flattery and like to have admirers, you can, at times, misuse your powers. Falling in love with love can also be a problem for you. Overall, you are fair and generous, but you are not always quite as soft and gentle as you might, at first, appear. Libra has been called 'the iron hand in the velvet glove' and behind your easy manner your mind is razor-sharp.

Your Venus in the Tenth House

The tenth house represents our public image, our career and standing in the world. The sign occupying the tenth house, as well as the planets found there, show how we project ourselves to others and the part we play on the stage of life. This house also shows our attitude towards authority and is connected with our parents, as it is from them that we get our first impression of the world and learned how to function in it. It is here that we give concrete form to the vision of the world that we have developed in the ninth house, which rules our philosophy of life.

With Venus here, you may have a very glamorous public image and you like to be recognized by others for your elegance, your taste and style - and your good looks. You are always well turned out and are usually up to date with the latest fashions. You could work in the fashion industry, in the world of films or in the art world, as Venus here gives a keen eye for beauty and a sense of what the public wants. Because you need harmony around you in the work place, you make an easy, diplomatic colleague. You are also a highly social being, and are probably to be seen at all the right parties. You may have inherited your Venusian public persona from one, or both, of your parents.

Your Venus in Opposition with Your Jupiter

You love to make grand gestures and to have an active social life. You pour out your affection and attention on almost anyone that comes along, and you enjoy good living. But rushing from one party to the next so as not to miss out on anything, you can forget that life is not only about fun. Especially if you were fortunate enough to have a sheltered childhood, you may always expect to be the center of attention and take a lot of things for granted. But there is an innocence and an idealism about you, and real generosity of spirit.

Your Venus in Sextile with Your Ascendant

Venus in sextile with your ascendant gives great charm and magnetism to your personality. You are popular wherever you may go, which is what you need and crave for, as all you really want is to be accepted. Which means that you will go far to avoid conflict, even if it does not really suit your interests to stand back. You also enjoy the good things in life, you will do everything you can to make yourself comfortable and enjoy yourself as much as possible. You may well make a career for yourself in the arts.

Mars

The fiery and dynamic planet, Mars, rules your will power, sexuality and drive. Its sign and house position, as well as the links it makes to other planets, show your energy and motivation. It is the action planet, revealing where, and how, you are assertive, as well as your courage - and aggression. It also rules your sex drive and your general libido. In a man's chart it also describes his type of masculinity, while in a woman's chart it shows what kind of man she is drawn to.

Your Mars in Gemini

Gemini's curiosity is boundless and it is always on the go, seeking out new information and establishing new contacts. For it is ruled by Mercury, the quick-witted and fast moving messenger of the gods, who also was the god of commerce. Rational thinking, information, learning, language, writing and communication of all kinds, as well as trade, are Gemini's true zone and variety and change are crucial to well-being. Gemini is also known as the butterfly of the zodiac, moving from topic to topic, enjoying conversation for its own sake and research of every kind. Living on the nerves can be a problem, as can being volatile for this, the wittiest of the signs.

It is no problem for you to approach strangers, as you are forthright, honest and extremely open. You love to talk, and to debate, and there is hardly a topic which does not interest you and about which you do not have something to say. In fact, you love a heated discussion and do not back away from conflicts. A good fight can even bring out your best and your quick retorts make you a formidable opponent, but you can be sarcastic, at times, and say things that later, you regret. You spend a lot of energy collecting information, as knowledge is all important to you, and, if you work in the media, your tremendous drive and creativity will make you very successful.

Your Mars in the Seventh House

The seventh house is the house of long-term partnerships, one-to-one relationships, and of everything that connects us with, and makes us aware of others. It is the sphere of co-operation. The sign occupying the seventh house, and any planets here, describe the way that we relate - and what qualities we look for in a partner. They also show what kind of relationships we have, as well as the aspects of ourselves that we are unaware of and project on others.

Wherever Mars falls in your chart, you feel the greatest urge, and need, for self-assertion. With Mars in your seventh house, it is through relationships and contact with the world that you can best express yourself and gain a real sense of self worth. You also bring to your relationships a great deal of fire and passion. Life is never dull with you, as you are always on the go. Because you are so forthright - and outspoken, sometimes - you clear the air when there are problems and move forward, instead of bottling up emotions or harboring old grudges. With Mars here, it may also be that you project the qualities this planet represents on those you are involved with, instead of recognizing them as your own.

Your Mars in Trine with Your Uranus

You are a great innovator, tearing down the old to make way for the new, and you are always full of creative, new ideas. Your unconventional approach gives you the edge on your potential rivals and you have more than your fair share of energy and drive. Independence is also very important to you and you are not afraid to take risks to break new ground and reach your most ambitious and adventurous goals.

Your Mars Conjunct your Descendant

With dynamic and hot-headed Mars in charge of your close partnerships with others, you are a very passionate person. There are no half measures with you, and you either love or hate. You have no time for subterfuge or subtlety, as you believe in honesty and truth, even if it hurts. Open and direct, you expect the same from those you are involved with and you bring to your relationships a lot of energy and warmth.

Jupiter

Optimistic Jupiter's position in your chart shows where, and how, you can grow and expand your horizons. Jupiter rules your philosophy of life - how you make sense of existence. It is the Teacher and Guide, representing wisdom and your ability to grasp life's meaning. Its sign and house position, as well as the links it makes to other planets in your chart, describe your life path and career. It is also the bringer of good fortune, but, because it expands everything it touches, it can also bring inflation and exaggeration. It rules making journeys and discovery of every kind.

Your Jupiter in Aries

Aries is the sign of the pioneer and leader. It is impulsive, spontaneous and highly original. Lively and enthusiastic, quick-witted and amusing, it is also restless and impatient. Everything must happen now - act first and think later is its motto. Rushing in where others fear to tread, Aries is a risk-taker, who likes to take the center of the stage and to provoke a response from others. It needs freedom and resents all forms of restriction and routine, moving from one interest to another with great speed.

With Jupiter in Aries, you are one of life's crusaders; you like to take the lead, and you do not feel obliged to play by the same rules as others. You have your own beliefs and you are confident of your opinions, which makes you dynamic, forceful and persuasive. You also have more than your fair share of energy and drive, which you put into realizing your ideals. However, there are times when you act first and think later, or fail to listen to advice.

Your Jupiter in the Fourth House

The fourth house represents the most private, hidden area of your psyche, the opposite of your public image and the face you show the world. It is concerned with all the things that you bring with you from your past; your roots, your family history and your home. Here, the search for knowledge which began in the third house, ends and we come home to ourselves, settle down and reconnect with the well-springs of our being.

With the expansive planet, Jupiter, in the house that rules your roots, your family and your past, your home and all who dwell there come high up on your agenda. Even without lots of money, you can make your home appear to be a palace. When you do have funds, you spend them on entertaining, luxury and comfort, which you love to share with those around you.

With Jupiter here, your childhood home was probably an open, friendly place, which has given you a positive outlook on existence. You also like, and need, ample space around you.

Your Jupiter in Trine with Your Neptune

You have an open and spiritual nature, and you rely on instinct and emotion more than reason. Due to your deep understanding for other people's problems, you are very generous and benevolent towards them. Because you understand life within a greater context, you experience moments of intense clarity. You have a limitless imagination and can lose yourself in being creative. Others can easily get caught up in your enthusiasm and joy.

Your Jupiter in Opposition with Your Pluto

You are enthusiastic and ambitious, but you often fail to reach your goal because you try to go too far, too fast. Nothing seems impossible to you - which may be true - but to reach your destination, you must first come to terms with what is happening in the here and now. You have, in fact, got many talents and abilities, but you tend to overlook your real potential and aim for something that is way beyond your reach, or that is plain fantastic. Meanwhile, your real gifts remain unused. Try to keep your feet on solid ground and be more realistic.

Your Jupiter in Opposition with Your MC

You are not a public person and your real interests lie in your own inner world and your close family connections. Home is where you feel at ease and where you find it easiest to change and grow. In fact, you could happily, and constructively, spend all your time out of the public eye in your private world, communicating with those nearest and dearest to you. Working from home would suit you best.

Saturn

Saturn shows the way that you relate to responsibility and commitment. As the planet of karma, and of limitations, inhibitions and boundaries, Saturn's sign and house position, as well as the links it makes to other planets in your chart, show where, and why, you lack confidence or are afraid, and where your real life lessons must be learned. Saturn slows down and inhibits any planet that it touches. It shows your relationship to authority and towards your standing in the world. Its position also reveals where, and how, you can realize ambitions and give your life a firm foundation.

Your Saturn in Leo

Magnanimous proud and generous, like the lion that is the King of Beasts, Leo has an almost regal outlook on existence and is built on the grand scale. There is nothing mean or petty about the fiery sign of Leo, which also has great warmth and charm and a natural gift for creativity and drama. Behind its self-confidence, a great deal of sensitivity is also hidden. Leo also likes the limelight and is always center-stage.

Saturn in Leo can give inhibitions about showing your real personality. You probably like to disappear in the crowd so that no one even notices that you are there, because you may not have yet found any way to express your self or your creativity. However, you take yourself seriously and your position in the world matters to you. Once your self-confidence develops, no one will be able to take it from you. Your awareness of the value of friends and of social acceptance prevents you from risking them through any kind of reckless behavior.

Your Saturn in the Eighth House

The eighth house is concerned with endings and beginnings, with regeneration and transformation. Here, we discard what we have outgrown to make way for the new. Here, also we get down to the heart of things, stripping away the dross to reveal the truth or essence of the subject. This is the house of legacies, of joint financial issues, of sexuality and of everything that is shared with others.

As Saturn stands for boundaries and limitations, you like to feel that you are in control of your emotions and of your close bonds with others. You are just and fair - and loyal - but you can feel threatened if you have to take risks with your feelings. You will go half way to meet somebody, but no further. With Saturn here, you are also cautious and down to earth about money and you never take a risk. Which can cut both ways, as you can hold back and miss out on the real opportunities that come your way.

Your Saturn in Square with Your Uranus

You are a highly independent person and prefer to stand alone and be a pioneer than bow your head and follow the herd blindly. In fact, all attempts to make you toe the line only make you all the more determined to rebel and you will fight for your beliefs - and freedom - even if it means that you fall out with colleagues or with friends. For you can be quarrelsome, at times, as you feel that your opinions are often worth more than those of other people. You also have an inner strength that enables you to branch out and succeed alone, despite the odds.

Uranus

Uranus, the planet of sudden change, is the bringer of enlightenment and of sudden inspiration. Its house position in your chart, as well as the links it makes with other planets, show how Uranus affects you personally. Uranus reveals where you are most unique and which areas of life are likely to offer you new possibilities for growth and change. Its influence has been described as a wind that blows the sand from a hidden city, revealing your true self. It also shows your attitude towards authority, and towards the new. It also rules electronics and IT technology.

Because it moves so slowly round the sun, taking nearly a decade to travel through one zodiac sign, you will share its sign position with your whole generation.

Your Uranus in Scorpio

Scorpio, which rules, sex, birth, death and regeneration, is the most intense of all the signs. Ruled by all or nothing Pluto, and by fiery Mars, it is concerned with what is going on beneath the surface of existence, and with passion, truth and profound transformation. Scorpio has a powerful will and great determination. It is also loyal, but secretive, mysterious and magnetic.

Those born between 1975 and 1981 have Uranus in Scorpio, which gives a great desire, and need, to go beyond convention, and to discover hidden truths which could liberate mankind from superficiality and half truths.

The way that Uranus affects you personally depends more on its house position and its aspects to other planets in your chart.

Your Uranus in the Tenth House

The tenth house represents our public image, our career and standing in the world. The sign occupying the tenth house, as well as the planets found there, show how we project ourselves to others and the part we play on the stage of life. This house also shows our attitude towards authority and is connected with our parents, as it is from them that we get our first impression of the world and learned how to function in it. It is here that we give concrete form to the vision of the world that we have developed in the ninth house, which rules our philosophy of life.

You are one of society's rebels, and you like to be seen as such. Your ideas are progressive and you could be a great force for change. The chances are that you will change career several times during your life, as once you feel a project is no longer worth it, you will cut loose and start again. You are no respecter of persons; in fact you hate authority, tradition and convention and you put up a fight if anyone attempts to put you under pressure to conform.

Neptune

Neptune is the planet of mysticism, and of dreams and ideals. It describes what kind of imagination you have, what inspires you, your particular kind of idealism, and your dreams. It is also concerned with all that is unseen; your psychic powers and your sensitivity to the atmosphere around you. While Saturn stands for boundaries, Neptune, the ruler of the ever-changing oceans, yearns for freedom from constrictions. It also rules false glamour, deception and illusion.

Because Neptune takes around fourteen years to travel through one zodiac sign, you share it sign position with your whole generation. Its house position and the links it makes to other planets in your chart show how it affects you on a more personal level.

Your Neptune in Sagittarius

For Sagittarius, the starry archer, life is an adventure and a journey to discover truth. Sagittarius is about the way we broaden our horizons and our thirst for knowledge and experience. It is concerned with learning, and with teaching, as well as our entire philosophy of life. Sagittarius sees the broader picture and is not concerned with details. It also governs foreign lands and cultures, as well as everything connected with religion and freedom of belief.

Neptune was in Sagittarius from 1970 to 1984. For those with Neptune here, spirituality and philosophy are all-important. They are adventurous and open-minded about other faiths and other peoples, making their own decisions instead of following the herd blindly, or accepting the status quo. The way that Neptune affects you on a personal level is shown by its house position and the links it makes to other planets in your chart.

Your Neptune in the Twelfth House

The twelfth house governs the unconscious mind, and is the place where we seek oneness with all life. Telepathy and psychic powers, intuition and tuning into hidden needs and feelings, both in ourselves and others, are found here. It is also the house of self sacrifice and of secrets of all kinds, and the place where we are linked to the beyond.

With Neptune in the twelfth house, which is its own domain, it is at its most powerful and at home. Your psychic powers are quite considerable, and, at times, you can seem to know things of which you have no personal experience, or glimpse truths that others have no access to. You are very sensitive to other people's feelings; too much so, at times, which can make it hard for you to stand your ground and make your own decisions.

Your Neptune in Sextile with Your Pluto

This aspect gives an ability to see beyond conventional values and to work out your own beliefs. It also gives a real ability to see beyond your personal interests and to work for the good of others. You may also have some psychic ability and a gift for art.

Your Neptune in Sextile with Your MC

You have the ability to intuitively grasp the mood of the people around you and you have a real sixth sense for coming trends. Professionally, you are probably involved with the arts, and, with your creative potential, success should be within your reach. Your relationships with everyone are characterized by warmth.

Pluto

Called after the Roman god of the underworld, Pluto governs the unconscious mind. It is the planet of regeneration, change and transformation, showing your unconscious motivations and your most intense - and hidden - feelings. Secretive Pluto gives depth and passion to any planet that it touches, making it hard to be objective and detached.

Because it is the furthest planet from the Sun, Pluto takes so long to travel through one zodiac sign that you share its influence by sign with your whole generation, as you do with Uranus and Neptune.

Your Pluto in Libra

Libra is the most sociable and amenable of all the signs, ever eager to fit in with others and seeking harmony and balance. Governed by Venus, this is the sign of one-to-one relationships, and, like one half of a pair of scales, Libra needs others to feel whole. Falling in love with love - and being flirtatious - can be problems, as can making choices and decisions, but Libra is also the sign of justice, and is fair, civilized - and sophisticated.

Because it is the furthest planet from the Sun, Pluto takes so long to travel through one zodiac sign that you share its influence by sign with your whole generation, as you do with Uranus and Neptune. Pluto should therefore be interpreted for individuals by its house position and its aspects to the other planets because it moves very slowly.

Pluto was in the sign of Libra, the sign of relationships, from 1972 until 1983. Those born between these dates seek true authenticity in their intimate connections with others. During this era, many aspects of traditional marriage and family life have been questioned, and abandoned, as Pluto tears down out-dated attitudes and structures to make way for the new.

Your Pluto in the Ninth House

The ninth house is concerned with long journeys, discovery and broadening our horizons. It rules not only long-distance travel and far-flung lands, but religion and philosophy, for many of our journeys are inward ones, being quests to find the meaning of existence. The sign occupying this house, and the planets found there, describe our quest and our vision of the universe's meaning. Here we can stand back, and, seeing life in the round, can synthesize experience and make sense of our lives.

With the truth planet, Pluto, in the ninth house of your chart, you are not satisfied by superficial answers. As Pluto governs the unconscious mind, with all its perils and its riches, your journey to the truth may be a very personal one, leading through the labyrinth of the soul. You are also courageous when it comes to facing truths that others would side step or turn away from. If something is a lie, you will abandon it without a second thought, even if you have to stand alone. But because Pluto rules not only endings, but rebirth and transformation, you emerge, reborn, and ready to say yes to life; and with a deeper understanding of its meaning.

Your Pluto in Conjunction with Your MC

You invest a great deal of energy in structuring your professional life. To reach the goals you have set for yourself, you can often show a sophistication that astounds everyone around you. Pluto is involved with everything that has depth. As Pluto deals with renewal, its position on your chart's midheaven may mean that your status will constantly be changing, as you have an inner sense of when to abandon outworn attitudes and projects and start anew.

The Nodes of the Moon - Your Life's Evolutionary Path

The Nodes of the Moon, which mark the points where the Moon's apparent orbit crosses the Sun's, help us to understand our lives as a dynamic journey of growth and change. Their position in our Natal Chart show us our natural strengths and weaknesses, helping us to understand where we are coming from, and where we should be going.

The South Node of the Moon - The Line of Least Resistance

We come into this world with inborn tendencies and talents. The sign occupied by the South Node of the Moon in your natal chart, and the house it occupies, reveal the ways of thinking and behaving that are second nature to you, and the area of life that you feel most at home in and find easiest to deal with.

Whether or not these are gifts developed in a previous life, or are just a part of our genetic inheritance, we tend to fall back on what is most familiar to us, and can fail to develop the qualities of the sign and house position of the South Node's opposite, the North Node of the Moon.

The North Node of the Moon - The Future, Growth and Change

The North Node of the Moon always occupies the opposite zodiac sign, and house, to the South Node. It shows us the qualities we need to develop in order to evolve and to become more whole and balanced, as well as the area of life that we need to learn to deal with better.

North Node in Scorpio, South Node in Taurus

With the South Node of the Moon in Taurus, security, stability and earthly pleasures are amongst your top priorities in life. You prefer to take things easy, and at their face value, and you ignore the deeper, more emotional aspects of existence. You are steady, down to earth and fixed in your opinions, but with the North Node of the Moon in all-or-nothing, passionate Scorpio, you are being challenged to experience more intense emotions, and to try and fathom life's more hidden and mysterious side.

South Node in the Fifth House

In the fifth house, we want, and need, to be the center of attention. This house is also concerned with how we develop our unique talents and express ourselves. The sign occupying the fifth house, and any planets here, describe how you enjoy life and what gives you pleasure, as well as how you give expression to your individuality. Traditionally, it rules children, enjoyment, art, music, love affairs, in which we give expression to our real selves and feelings, and all new departures.

Your Line of Least Resistance: You are focused on romance, pleasure, creativity, and self-expression.

North Node in the Eleventh House

The eleventh house rules social life, as well as all joint endeavors. The sign, and any planets here, describe the way that we fit in with others and operate when we are in a group. This is the house of altruistic and humanitarian goals, of friendship and community, where we work hard to make our vision of the brotherhood of man, and of a better world, come true.

Your Life Path Challenge: to have more time for others, and for friendship, social life and group endeavours.
